

Bhavan to begin teaching of all Indian languages

Now you can learn all modern Indian languages at one place in Delhi and that is Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan here.

Language being the vehicle of culture, and in order to bridge the North-South and East-West emotional divide, Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan has decided to start teaching of regional languages like Tamil, Malayalam, Kannada and Telugu, Bengali, Assamese, Marathi, Odia, Urdu and Kashmiri from the coming session in April 2020.

Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan, an eminent educational Institute known for the various media, management, foreign languages and Indian astrology is also teaching Sanskrit and other Indian culture related courses.

Learning of these languages will benefit the children of migrants who have settled in the NCR region decades back, and it will also help those who are interested in knowing the multiple faces of our culture represented by literatures.

Many North Indians, who are aspiring for jobs in other States and who like learning of a non-mother tongue may enroll themselves for these language classes.

Classes will be held twice a week that too in the evening, he said, adding that this is a great cultural initiative by Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan.

In case of any query, please contact Prof O P Verma, Vice Principal, Mobile: 9810722468