One Year Diploma in Social Work (DSW)

Today, Social work does not mean just helping beggars, educating slum children or listening to Widows. It is much more than that. Today, NGOs are functioning like a corporate houses, with large volume of yearly turn-over. Today, every Social working organization attract very good amount of capital in the shape of Donations from individual, Charity from Society and big quantity of Aids from Indian Government and Foreign Countries. Today, NGOs are involved in several activities to spend the fund accumulated. So there are plenty of job opportunities for trained Social Workers.

But remember, the person who wants to become social worker, must be kind hearted human being, dedicated to the work, and likes to get mixed up with poor, needy and uneducated people. Today's social worker should have dual personality. While working in slum, he will behave like a close friend, loving, caring and down to earth. And while in office he is a smart executive, doing every work within legal limitations, and considering perfect ROI (Return on Investment). Working in the field of social work, offers great job satisfaction, maximum love from people, and lot of respect from society, and good amount of earning to live a comfortable life.
